

The Department of Economics Distinguished Lecture

Assistance to the Poor in the United States: Growing or Falling?

Thursday, March 22, 2018

3:00 pm - 4:30 pm

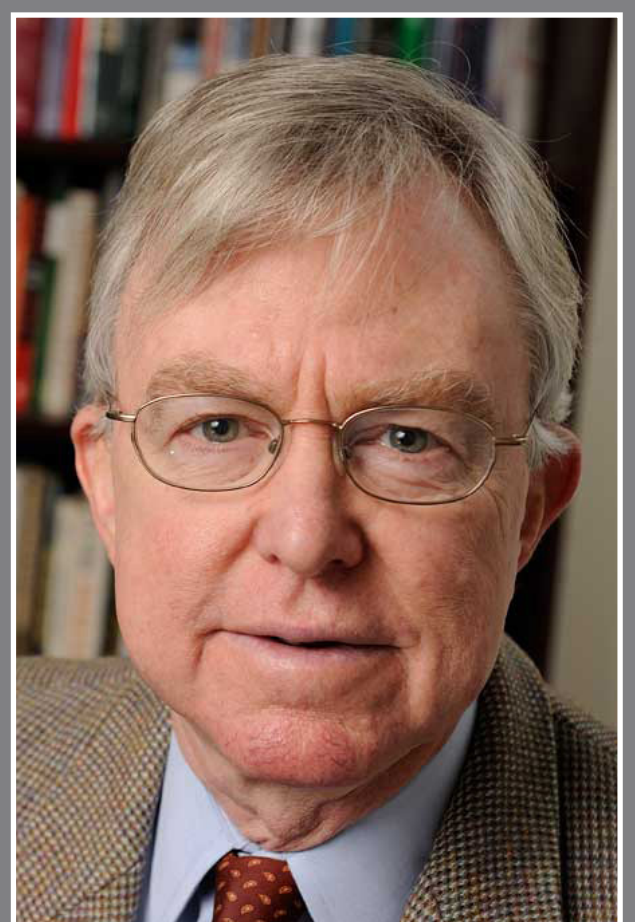

McKellar Room, University Community Centre

Reception to follow at The Wave

A lecture by Dr. Robert Moffitt

Krieger-Eisenhower Professor of Economics
Johns Hopkins University

Robert A. Moffitt is an award-winning economist who specializes in labour economics and applied microeconometrics. He is an expert on the economics of issues relating to low-income populations. His research on the US welfare system has led to publications on the AFDC, Food Stamp, and Medicaid programs as well as public policy work on welfare reform.

Western
Social Science