

Postdoctoral Fellowship in Political Economy

The W. Allen Wallis Institute of Political Economy is seeking applicants for a Postdoctoral Fellowship. The appointment can be for one or two semesters during the academic year 2013--2014. The Institute, which is a collaborative effort of the University of Rochester's Departments of Economics and Political Science, is dedicated to fostering the growth of the interdisciplinary field of Political Economy.

Fellows should have strong interest in Political Economy and will be expected to participate in the intellectual life of the Economics and Political Science Departments. They will also be required to teach one course in political economy or in their discipline during the academic year. The precise courses will, as much as possible, follow the Fellow's choices.
